Christianity

The Church has produced many documents which provide the theological backing for interreligious dialogue and offer guidance on how to cultivate a dialogue with people who belong to other religions.

Much of the Catholic Church's teaching on interreligious dialogue comes from "Nostra Aetate", written by Pope Paul VI during the Second Vatican Council. This document provides the doctrinal foundation for dialogue.

More recently, the Bishop's Conference's document "Meeting God in Friend and Stranger" provides a pastoral guide to putting this teaching into action. Below there are links to these documents, as well as to the Vatican Dicastery (department) who deal with interreligious dialogue:

Judaism

The Catholic Church's bond to the Jewish religion & people is a close one - Pope St John Paul II described them as our "older brothers" in faith. There are around 270,000 Jewish people in the UK (2021 Census).

There are a number of Christian-Jewish organisations that seek to deepen this historic bond, such as the Council of Christians and Jews. The Board of Deputies represent the voice of the British Jewish Community & Mitzvah Day is a good example of an interfaith social action project.

Islam

Along with Christianity and Judaism, Islam is one of the Abrahamic faiths. Organisations such as the Christian-Muslim forum work to deepen mutual respect & friendship between Christians and Muslims.

Hinduism, Sikhism & Buddhism

Although the historic bond to Hinduism, Sikhism or Buddhism is not as strong as the Church's links to Judaism and Islam, interreligious dialogue and deepening mutual understanding retains its importance. According to the 2021 Census there are 1 million Hindus, ~520,000 Sikhs and ~275,000 Buddhists in the UK.

Jainism, the Bahá'í Faith & Zoroastrianism:

There are around 60,000–70,000 Jains in the UK (compared with around 27 million Christians & 4 million Muslims (2021 Census)). Along with the Bahá'í Faith (~7,000 adherents in the UK) and Zoroastrianism (~5,000 adherents in the UK), Jainism is a minority religion in the UK.

However, this does not dispense of the need to learn about these religions, nor need it be a barrier to interreligious dialogue. In schools, many students may never have encountered members of these religions before. Moreover, if you have students who belong to these traditions, you might like to ask them to explain their experience of the religion & its traditions. Below are some useful sites:

Local Interfaith Forums: London

The majority of London Boroughs have active interfaith forums and so, when looking for speakers for events or talks in schools, making contact with these forums can be helpful. Many of these forums want to increase their engagement with local schools – this can be a good way to further integrate a school into the local faith & civic community.

You can also search for Interfaith Forums via the Inter Faith Network's website: <https://www.interfaith.org.uk/involved/groups>.

Local Interfaith Forums: Hertfordshire

There are not as many Interfaith Forums in Hertfordshire. However, the Inter Faith Network's search can help you to find your closest forum: <https://www.interfaith.org.uk/involved/groups/local-inter-faith/east>.

Like the London Forums, local Interfaith Forums often have good links with the Council and local faith leaders.

The Herts Inter Faith Forum is a group that covers the whole of Hertfordshire: <https://e-voice.org.uk/hertsinterfaithhub/> & Westminster Interfaith have good relationships with this group.

You can also utilise your local networks - i.e. the contacts of teachers of different religions or parent's recommendations.

If you are struggling to find a speaker, do get in contact with James our Interfaith Coordinator on westminsterinterfaith@rcdow.org.uk.

Westminster Interfaith was founded in 1981 by Br Daniel Faivre SG (in the photo on the left). Br Daniel was a pioneer in the field of interreligious dialogue and founded Westminster Interfaith, the first Catholic agency dedicated to interfaith work in Great Britain.

Today, we work in the Diocese of Westminster to bring this teaching to a new audience, engaging young people in the work of dialogue.
